Witness From New York Testifies for Victor L. Berger.

CHICAGO, Ill., Dec. 24.—Charges that counsel for the Government had attempted to coerce a witness were made today at the trial of Representative Victor L. Berger of Wisconsin and four other Socialists charged with conspiracy to violate the espionage law.

The charge was made by Mann Deutch, State organizer for the Young Peoples Socialist League of New York, who testified for the defense to-day.

Deutch testified that many Socialists in New York had been coerced into the army draft and were considered turning back for a while to evade military service.

Deutch testified he was brought to Chicago by the Government and was threatened with indictment when he failed to identify the episode.

John M. Work, a member of the National Committee of the Socialist party and an editor of the "New Leader," testified for the defense.

While Work was on the stand, Assistant District Attorney Fleming read a letter written by Victor L. Berger to the effect that many Socialists in New York had been coerced into the army draft and were considered turning back for a while to evade military service.

Berger in his reply said he recalled that he would be unable to speak but included $10 to help pay the expenses of the meeting.

Berger added that many Socialists in New York had been coerced into the army draft and were considered turning back for a while to evade military service.

The trial will be resumed Thursday morning.
